International Conference on

India and Russia: Building Bridges between Societies through Language, Literature, Translation and Culture

12th-14th November 2025

The Indo-Russia relationship has been observed exceptionally not only in modern times but also in ancient times. The cultural trade relations between both countries commenced even before Afanasy Nikitin's voyaged to India. Excavations took place in various places in Russia suggest that the relations between the two nations have been founded in ancient times.

From deep-rooted archaic relations to strong and time-tested support, broad strategic cooperation in the contemporary period witnesses the exceptional friendship between India and Russia. The present Prime Minister of India Sh. Narendra Modi said "Our friendship has stood the test of time. Russia is a pillar of strength in India's development journey." There are various similar components, such as common cultural routes, similarities in some Indian and Russian languages, traditions and culture. Both the countries admire each other at various national and international forums. In 1930, Mahatma Gandhi said, "I have always had the greatest respect and admiration for the Russian people, and particularly for their striving for spiritual and social truth." The exchange of letters between Mahatma Gandhi and Leo Tolstoy depicts the respect and affection for learning from each other. The learnings of non-violence, love and spirituality for humanity have been some of the key points in the correspondence between the two philosophers.

The geopolitical and economic scenario today portrays that various states are trying to establish a trusted friendship with other nations for development and trade. In contrast, Indo-Russia has been unpretending partners for a long. The friendship between both nations is flourishing today at a very high pace in various fields such as culture, education, trade, security, safety, etc.; therefore, it is pertinent to study and discuss the same in today's scenario. Studying past and present will lay down the path for a bright future.

Taking down to the past 60 years the Centre of Russian Studies, School of Language, Literature and Culture Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University is continuing to be one of torch bearer in the field of Russian Studies in India.
