About the Course

This course is designed to provide students with a more advanced and specialised reading in international political theory. It will look at how international political theory has evolved over the years by reading some of the seminal texts. Through a detailed examination of these core texts, the course would cover major theoretical traditions in the discipline to help students develop a strong theoretical foundation for their research.

Course Evaluation

Class Participation (10%):

Participation in class discussions is essential as this is not strictly a lecture course. Students are expected to read the assigned text beforehand and participate in the class discussion which will be initiated by a student (10-15 minutes). They would be assessed on this component of course evaluation throughout the semester. When you read a book, try to think of at least 4-6 points (agreements, disagreements, questions, puzzles etc.) on each reading that you want to discuss further in class. Students will take turns to initiate discussion on a book. It is expected that all students will participate in the discussion, not just the student who has been assigned the responsibility to lead the discussion.

Mid-Semester Evaluation (40%):

Two book reviews of 20% each with a word limit of 1000 words. The first review is due on 31 May. The second review is due on 15 June. To avoid duplication, you are required to get prior approval of the book you wish to review. The book selected for review must be different from the book you are assigned to initiate discussion in class. The book can be from outside the course readings but must be explicitly dealing with IR theory.

End-Semester Evaluation (50%):

Review Essay of not more than 3000 words of at least two books, one of which could be from the reading list below. Review essays are different from book reviews; please read review essays in journals such as World Politics, International Security, and International Organization to get an idea of what is expected from a review essay. The books chosen must be first cleared by the course instructors. The reviews are due on 30 June.

Note:

- Students are required to maintain a high degree of academic integrity, which particularly includes abstaining from plagiarism in any form. Please consult course instructors if you are unsure of the rules regarding plagiarism.
- All written assignments must be submitted through <http://www.turnitin.com>, along with a hard copy, within stipulated deadlines.
- Penal grades would be imposed for late submission/ presentation, plagiarism, and use of any other unethical academic practice. You will lose one grade for every week of late submission.

- SIS Research Manual (http://www.jnu.ac.in/SIS/SIS\_Research\_Manual.pdf) should be used as a guide for all written assignments.
